Market Review

MSCI Asia ex Japan rose 1.3% in USD terms in August, mainly driven by China's performance.

MSCI China was up 5% in USD terms on the back of an extended US-China tariff pause to 10th November and abundant onshore liquidity going into equities. Strong thematic tailwinds also drove China's performance. Higher AI capex drove performance for global AI supply chain names as well as IT localization names, while more signs of execution on anti-involution drove performance for stocks in the Materials sector.

MSCI India was the worst performing market, down 2.2% in USD terms. Tariff escalation from the US weighed on sentiment, resulting in further foreign institutional investor selling. The underperformance was slightly offset by the announcement on GST reforms which led to consumer stocks going up.

MSCI Taiwan (-0.7% in USD terms) saw relatively muted performance during the month. MSCI Korea was down 1.5% in USD terms due to increasing uncertainty on governance reform momentum as the tax reform bill proposed by the Democratic Party raised concerns about policy orientation.

China's July economic data came in mixed. Industrial Production was up 5.7% YoY. However, Retail sales showed further growth moderation at 3.7% YoY. Fixed Investment fell 0.3% YoY, the first monthly contraction in five years. July exports grew 7.2% YoY.

India's CPI in July was at a 97-month low of 1.6%, easing from 2.1% in June. Composite PMI in August rose to a record high of 65.2. Industrial Production grew 3.5% YoY in July, picking up sharply from 1.5% YoY in the previous month.

Investment Strategy

Global tariff policies announced by Trump may cause a slowdown in global trading activities, as well as dampen corporate capex intentions. Nevertheless, we remain positive on Asia ex Japan Equities on a 12-month basis as two largest economies in the region are likely to provide meaningful policy support.

China has announced "anti-involution" policies aimed at arresting price erosion and unnecessary competition. It has also stepped up infrastructure spending with the launch of a Rmb 1.2 trillion hydropower dam project in Tibet.

India front-loaded monetary stimulus in a meaningful way with Reserve Bank of India (RBI) cutting rates by 100bps this year. In addition, regulatory environment and liquidity have also turned positive and will support growth.

MSCI Asia ex-Japan valuations have risen towards its long-term average. This is supported by easing inflation and brighter outlook for earnings growth.
