Market Review

Global equity markets fell in September, with the MSCI All Country World Index down 1.1% in USD terms. Best contributing regions were Taiwan (+4.2%), Japan (+1.6%), and South Korea (+3.2%), while France (-6.8%), Canada (-4.4%), and United States (-0.4%) were the largest detractors. From a sector perspective, the best performing sectors were Information Technology (+4.4%) and Communication Services (+2.8%), while worst performing sectors were Financials (-4.9%), Consumer Discretionary (-6.2%), and Industrials (-3.9%).

In the US, equities were modestly lower in September, with the S&P 500 down 0.5%, as investors weighed inflation and rate risks. Real GDP grew at an annualised 2.2% in 2Q26; September non-farm payrolls increased by 29,000 and unemployment was 4.2%. CPI data showed that August inflation at 3.4% year on year (core CPI: 2.4%). The Federal Reserve raised the federal funds target range by 25 basis points in September, to combat persistent inflation.

In the euro area, Q2 GDP rose 0.6% quarter on quarter and 1.2% year on year. Flash harmonised index of consumer prices (HICP) accelerated to 3.8% year on year in September from 3.2% in August, while energy inflation rose to 18.8% from 14.3%. The ECB raised its key rates by 25 basis points in September, taking the deposit facility rate to 2.50%; European equities fell as higher energy prices and bond yields weighed on sentiment.

In Asia, Japan's equity market was mixed: the Nikkei 225 rose 0.7% in September, with semiconductor and other technology names providing support. In China, although the manufacturing PMI returned to expansion at 50.1 in September, up from 49.8 in August, consumer sentiment remains weak, on slower economic growth.

Investment Strategy

We are positive on global equities on a 12-month basis. We continue to find compelling opportunities from our investment themes, including AI diffusion, disruption, and policy beneficiaries.

We continue to focus on companies delivering strong earnings growth. We have lowered our AI factor risk; however, we remain positive on the hyperscalers which have strong traction with corporate demand. We have also increased our positions in Health Care and Communication Services, especially on companies that can benefit from AI applications. While AI investment continues to be strong, we are mindful that not all companies will be able to sustain such strong growth.

In the US, we believe capital investment in the industrial and manufacturing sectors should benefit leading companies with strong market positions. We are also seeing opportunities in the financial sector, which may benefit from higher interest rates and growth in wealth management.

In Asia, we remain positive on leading suppliers in the manufacturing supply chain. We also expect China to continue investing in technology and AI, as it seeks to achieve AI self-sufficiency. China's renewable energy solutions could also benefit from higher demand amid geopolitical uncertainty.

We are finding selected opportunities in technology, financials, industrials, healthcare, defence, and basic materials sectors.
