Market Review

The FTSE ST All-Share Index was up 0.7% during the period. Financials, Consumer Staples outperformed the broader market. On the flipside, Industrials and Real Estate lagged. During the October review, the Monetary Authority of Singapore maintained its policy stance by keeping the S$ Nominal Effective Exchange Rate Index (S$NEER) policy band unchanged. Singapore's non-oil domestic exports saw a sequential increase of 13% after 2 months of sequential decline.

Singapore's core inflation rose slightly to 0.4% YoY in September, up from 0.33% YoY in August. Singapore's Industrial Production also saw a sharp sequential growth of 26.2% in September, a significant rebound from the 11% drop in the previous month. The Singapore Government will be announcing further market support measures within the Value-Unlock program, including government grants, toolkits, and an expanded suite of engagement platforms.

Investment Strategy

We remain bullish outlook for Singapore equities on a 12-month basis as we believe that Singapore's macro performance can trigger sustainably stronger earnings performance than investors appreciate. There is currently a wide gap of GDP growth over EPS growth and we believe this may not be sustained.

Singapore's earnings growth should continue to improve due to very low cost pressures, and with higher revenues over time as Singapore benefits from the global demand/industrial boom for high-value added outputs. Singapore banks, the largest sector in Singapore's equity market, are expected to see manageable impact on their Net Interest Margins.

We continue to favour companies who show a clear path towards improving shareholder returns either via capital management, monetisation of non-core assets and/or share buyback programs.
